The Sanctuary Lamp Burns In Loving

By The MOC

Saint John parishioners have been so thoughtful of the Ministry of Care event of delivering Christmas cards to our shut-ins, that we decided to have an Easter card event. We will have a basket and cards set up in the Narthex area. We will have a supply of Easter cards for your use until they are all gone or you can supply your own. The Narthex area will be set up on March 14th and cards will need to be turned in by April 5th. The MOC will deliver them the week after Easter. All cards will be greatly appreciated by the shut-ins as the cards at Christmas are. They are always surprised on how many parishioners remember them and enjoy reading them over and over. Thank you for your thoughtfulness.

Have a Blessed and Happy Easter.

OCIA The current world view of morals is called relativism. It means that there is no absolute right or wrong, no absolute truth. The Catholic world moral vision is exactly the opposite. One example of this is the Ten Commandments given us by God. They are clear statements of what is wrong. It is not possible for any of these to be wrong for one person but right for another.

When the Light Reveals our Hearts?

Lent is a season of honest reflection. By the fourth week, the journey can begin to feel long. Our sacrifices may be getting harder to keep, and the enthusiasm we felt on Ash Wednesday can start to fade. Yet right here, in the middle of Lent, the Gospel reminds us of something powerful: Christ comes as light into our darkness.

The Gospel tells us that light has come into the world, but sometimes people prefer darkness because the light reveals things we would rather keep hidden. That can be uncomfortable. Light exposes what is broken, what needs healing, what needs forgiveness. But that is exactly why Christ came not to condemn us, but to bring us into the truth that sets us free.

Think about how light works in our everyday lives. When you walk into a dark room and flip on the light, everything becomes clear. You see what was hidden. Sometimes it's something good, something beautiful. Other times it's the clutter we didn't notice before. The light doesn't create the mess it simply reveals it.

The same is true in our spiritual lives.

When Christ's light enters our hearts, it gently reveals the places where we need His mercy. Maybe it's a relationship that needs healing. Maybe it's a habit that slowly pulls us away from God. Maybe it's pride, anger, or a refusal to forgive. The light of Christ shows us these things not to shame us, but to invite us to something better.

This is why Lent places such a strong focus on the Sacrament of Reconciliation. Confession is not about standing in darkness feeling guilty. It is about stepping into the light of Christ's mercy. When we do, we discover something beautiful: God is not waiting there with condemnation. He is waiting there with healing.

But the Gospel also reminds us that once we encounter the light, we are called to live in the light.

That means letting Christ shape how we treat others each day. It means bringing kindness where there is bitterness, patience where there is frustration, and hope where someone feels lost. In a world that can sometimes feel dark with division, fear, and negativity, even a small act of love becomes a light that shines.

You don't have to change the whole world to be that light. Sometimes it is as simple as encouraging someone who is struggling, forgiving someone who hurt you, or quietly praying for someone who has lost their way.

Lent is not about perfection. It is about movement step by step out of darkness and into light. And the beautiful truth is this: the closer we walk with Christ, the brighter that light becomes.

So this week, ask yourself one simple question: Where is Christ inviting me to step more fully into His light?

If we are honest enough to let His light in, we will discover that it doesn't just reveal who we are it slowly transforms us into who God created us to be.

Blessings,
Deacon Mike

As the Diocese of Greensburg celebrates its 75th Anniversary, we have the opportunity to make choices that will shape the future of our parishes, form future priests and deacons, educate our young people, and strengthen our service to those in need. Please prayerfully consider making a gift to the 2026 Diocesan Lenten Appeal, 75 years: Our Foundation, Our Future.
